Introduction

On Monday, 26th October, 1863, at the Old Freemason's Tavern, Great Queen Street, Lincoln's Inn Fields, in the middle of Victorian London, representatives of 11 London and suburban clubs, one public school, and a number of interested parties of no particular club, met, and so the Football Association was born.

The first President was Mr. A. Pember. Our visitor today is a direct descendant of that formation.

Every player selected to take part in the F.A. of England Tour of Australia has had considerable experience in senior football in England. No less than 8 visiting players have represented England at Under 23 International level. The party has been carefully selected by Sir Alfred Ramsay, England Manager, with the definite purpose of grooming members for inclusion in the England 1974 World Cup squad. Players will give a sustained 90 minute performance in each game of the tour, as members of the Senior International Committee of the F.A. are accompanying the team, and will note their form.

Players have just completed a very active season, 42 matches as well as F.A. Cup ties. It is interesting to note that three of the players are members of teams which won their way to the sixth round of the F.A. Challenge Cup.

Welcome to our visitors, The Football Association of England. We hope you enjoy your stay here, and look forward to seeing top class Soccer.

An Outline of the Game

Soccer is an abbreviated term for Association Football. For those who are not conversant with the Laws, the following points may be of interest.

Each team consists of 11 players, one of whom is called the goalkeeper, who must be distinguished from other players by the colour of his shirt. Only the goalkeeper is allowed to handle the ball intentionally, and if other players do so then a direct free kick is awarded against him. Should this occur in the penalty area by a defending player, a Penalty kick from the spot 12 yards from the goal results. Only the goalkeeper is allowed to stop the ball in this case.

Pushing, holding, tripping, striking, kicking and jumping at a player are also fouls that result in a direct free kick, or penalty, as the case may be. A direct free kick is that from which a goal can be scored against the offending side, without the ball having been touched by another player. Certain technical offences are punished by an Indirect free kick, from which a goal cannot result, unless the ball is played by a second player, of either side. The Referee indicates an Indirect free kick by raising his arm.

The ball sent behind the goal line by an attacker results in a goal kick by the defending side. If it is put behind by a defender, a corner kick is taken by the attacking side. When the ball goes out over the side lines, it is thrown in by the side opposing that which last played the ball.

Off-side is a more complicated Law, yet a most frequent occurrence. We suggest you ask the person next to you to explain as the game progresses.

Duration of the game is 90 minutes, in two halves of 45 minutes. The game is controlled by a Referee and two linesmen.
